Papal Delegate, Two Bishops and Many Priests Were Present.

Monsignor Falconio Visits Other Catholic Educational Institutions.

HEARTY WELCOME TO KENTUCKY

Historic old St. Joseph's College at Bardonia, closed for the past twenty-two years, was reopened on Tuesday in the presence of one of the most distinguished gatherings of Catholics in the world. The ceremonies accompanying the reopening were most imposing and participated in by the Most Rev. Monsignor Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to the United States; Bishop O'Donoghue of Louisville, and thirty prominent priests, who with several hundred people were taken from Louisville on a special train. Mayor John Hancock met the visitors upon their arrival at Bardonia and turned over the keys of the town. Then Monsignor Falconio and the distinguished guests were taken in charge by the Knights of Columbus, under whose auspices the celebration was held, and with a big procession rode through the principal streets, arched by great streamers of Stars and Stripes, intermingled with the folds of the Papal colors of yellow and white. At 10:30 o'clock in the morning solemn Pontifical high mass was celebrated by Monsignor Falconio in St. Joseph's, the first Cathedral west of the Alleghenies and the second in the United States. He was assisted by a score of priests, and Father O'Connell, rector of the former Cathedral, delivered the sermon of the occasion.

A banquet in honor of the gathered notables was held at noon. Grand officers of the twenty State Councils of the Knights of Columbus attended the affair. During the afternoon the party was entertained by John M. Frost at his country home, rightfully called "The Old Kentucky Home." It was here Stephen Collins Foster penned the immortal verses of the song at that time.

Bishop O'Donoghue, once a student at St. Joseph's College, spoke of the pride which he felt in the reopening of the institution. "The silence has been broken," he said. "St. Joseph's College has been started again. I am glad to see the old place where, many years ago, I will not say how many, I was a student, lighted up after having been dark for so long." He dwelt upon the necessity of providing Christian education for the youth and of its value in making for good citizenship. Bishop O'Donoghue expressed pleasure at seeing the Xaverian Brothers in charge of the old college and said that he felt sure that its former prestige and fame would return.

Bishop Maes, in a few words, spoke of the auspicious circumstances surrounding the reopening of the school, declaring it his belief that its future was assured because of its being in such able hands. The presence of the Papal Delegate, he said, augured much for its success.

The Rev. Father Raffo, another who was once a student of the college, gave some reminiscences of his college days and declared that every wall of the college buildings held for him a hallowed memory. He declared that the arch-evil with which the Catholic church has to combat are divorce, socialism and anarchy, saying that much depends upon the education of the young men. Father Raffo also asserted that the influence of the Catholic church will have much to do with the continued freedom of America.

The Hon. E. J. McDermott spoke of his early associations with Bardonia and St. Joseph's College, and said that he was overjoyed to see the institution again illuminated. The strength of the nation, he said, instead of being in barracks and schools, should be in the churches and schools. "The time will come," Mr. McDermott declared, "when Kentucky will not only be renowned for its many men and beautiful women, but will be famous also for its education and religion."

Congressman Johnson predicted that in less than five years St. Joseph's College would be as it was before the war, when many great men were sent out from its portals. Monsignor Falconio expressed the wish that God would send his choicest blessings upon the college and its work, calling attention to the apparent enthusiasm and spirit of co-operation evidenced by the people of Bardonia and the community in general.

Judge James Mulligan, of Lexington, was also a speaker and read a poem written for the occasion. Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock Monsignor Falconio officiated at the benediction of the most blessed sacrament, and conferred the Papal blessing upon St. Joseph's College. At 8 o'clock he was accorded a public reception on the college campus.

Wednesday the Papal Delegate was taken on an auto trip to Nazareth. He also visited the Trappist Monastery at Gethsemane, Loretto Academy and St. Mary's College, near Lebanon, and St. Catherine's Convent and Academy at Springfield. Thursday Monsignor Falconio returned to Bardonia, when he expressed himself surprised and delighted with his reception and what he saw in Kentucky. Later he left for Washington, having been invited by Fairfax Harrison, President of the Monon railroad, to share his private car to the Capital.

POPE

Who Have Guided Catholic Church Since Founded.

Pope Pius X. is counted the 263d prelate to occupy that highest ecclesiastical office. While there have been 263 Popes, there are only seventy-eight different names in the list. Twenty-three bore the name of Joannes, sixteen that of Gregory, fourteen Clemens, fourteen Benedict, thirteen Leo, thirteen Innocent, ten Pius, ten Stephen, nine Boniface, eight Alexander and eight Urban. There have been six Popes named Hadrian, while each of the names, Paul, Sixtus, Nicholas, Martin and Celestine has been borne by five Popes. There were four Eugenues, four Honoras and four named Anastasius. Four others were named Sergius and four more Lelix. The names that appear three times in the list are Julius, Calixtus, Lucius and Victor. The names that appear only twice are Marcellus, Gelasius, Paschalis, Damasus, Sylvester, Agapetus, Marinus, Theodorus, Constantine and Pelagius.

Pius I. became Pope in 142. More than thirteen centuries passed before there was another Pope of that name, but only four and a half centuries lie between Pius II. and Pius X. Although there have been ten Stephens, there has been none since 1057. All the twenty-three Popes who were named Joannes ruled the Church between 528 and 1410, an average of nearly three to a century. Pope Clemens I. appeared in 91. The last Pope of that name, Clemens XIV., appeared in 1769. There were more than four hundred between Leo I. and Leo XIII.

There were only four Popes in the first century. The lowest number in any one century since then was in the nineteenth—six. There were twenty-five in the tenth and twenty each in the seventh and ninth. The eleventh century had nineteen and the twelfth century had twenty. The Popes of the twelfth century numbered sixteen; third, fifteen; eighth, fourteen; fifteenth, thirteen; sixth and fourteenth, twelve each; fifth and fourteenth, twelve each; seventh, eleven; second and fourth, ten each, while the eighteenth had eight.

Pope Pius is the longest in power thirty-one years, the longest of all, while some of his predecessors held the reins only a few days.

PROGRESSING.

Plans for Celebration of Cardinal Gibbons' Jubilee.

The programme for the celebration of Cardinal Gibbons' twenty-fifth anniversary of his elevation to the Cardinalate and of the fiftieth of his ordination as priest is taking definite shape and will include: October 15—Special services at the Cathedral, Archbishop Glennon, of St. Louis, celebrating the mass in the morning and Archbishop Blenk, of New Orleans, conducting the vespers service.

October 16—Clerical dinner at St. Mary's Seminary; a mammoth party, in which each of the fifty-two parishes in Baltimore will be represented. Cardinal Gibbons will review the procession from the portico of the Cathedral.

October 17—Children's day at the Cathedral, in which children from every parish in the city will join in singing a hymn which has been written especially for the occasion. The date for the presentation of the silver service to the Cardinal has not been fixed. It will be some time during the week preceding or the week succeeding October 15. Mayor Preston is Chairman of the committee having that in charge.

The dinner at the historic seminary will bring together one of the most distinguished gatherings of Catholic prelates ever held in this country, including the Papal Nuncio and all the prelates who are expected to assemble in Washington during the preceding week to attend the laying of the cornerstone of the Gibbons' memorial building at the Catholic University.

Ten thousand men are expected to be in line in the parade on Monday. The first division will include about 300 men in frock coats and high hats as aides. The Hibernian Rifles will march in this division, which will be led by the Fifth Regiment band. Following this division will be the men from the different parishes of the city with bands. Many uniformed bodies will be in line.

MOTHER JANET STUART.

Mother Janet Stuart, recently elected Mother General of the Ladies of the Sacred Heart, is a convert to the Catholic faith. Mother Stuart, who was born in November, 1857, was the daughter of a Protestant minister who was a great friend of Gladstone, the "Grand Old Man" of England, and it is history that when she became a Catholic Gladstone exerted all his influence to prevent her from changing from the Protestant to the Catholic faith. She became a nun in 1882.

POLITICAL.

Harmony the Watchword in Democratic Campaign This Year.

Ben Johnson, William Addams and Ex-Gov. Buckner in Line.

Republican Leaders and Organs Kept Busy by Hon. E. J. McDermott.

POST WANTS COMMITTEE FIRED

The Republicans who expected to see a split in the Democratic party after the recent primary and convention have been doomed to disappointment and are very much surprised at the way the leaders have gotten together. Hon. William Addams, who contested the nomination with Gov. McCreary, states in an interview that the ticket will be elected by 15,000 majority and that he will work hard for its success from now until November. Ex-Gov. Simon Bolivar Buckner, who was one of the best Governors Kentucky ever had, comes out strong for the ticket and commends every man on it to the voters. Hon. Ben Johnson, whose active participation in the campaign will be welcomed by every Democrat in the State, expresses himself as confident that the party will triumph at the polls in November and has already taken the stump for the ticket.

It is gratifying to see these old leaders in the ranks, and it proves that they realize that Democratic success in November will add materially in the election of a Democratic President next year. While the party has been through a very strenuous period, Democrats everywhere have accepted the result, and instead of flying at each other's throats are united in their determination to place Kentucky where it belongs in the list of Democratic States.

The speeches and splendid impression made on the voters by Hon. Edward J. McDermott, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, certainly served to disconcert the Republicans, and he is referred to by Judge O'Rear as one of the purest and best men in Kentucky and "the classiest one in the bunch." As proof of Mr. McDermott's successful campaign, the Post and Herald are working night and day in trying to answer his arguments and have made him the central figure of the campaign. Mr. McDermott has met every question raised by the Republicans. Those who have known him for a life time are confident that he would not betray a trust or stifle a conviction for the highest office in Kentucky.

The Post has started quoting proverbs in defense of Judge O'Rear and the Republican ticket, and the following was suggested to the Kentucky Irish American by a Republican: "No man can serve two masters."—Matthew, 6:24.—Breckham and O'Rear.

The local Democratic committee will open the campaign for the State and local tickets in the next ten days and expect the Fifth district to give Gov. McCreary and the entire ticket a majority of 3,000 to 5,000, which will be a big reversal of form from four years ago, when Gov. Willson carried it by 12,000. It is amusing to see the way the Post is trying to frighten the local committee and its followers by saying that in the event of the election of the Democratic ticket the State leaders will remove them and reorganize the committee, seeming to forget that the committee is chosen by the voters of precinct committeemen, and the precinct committeemen are chosen by the Democratic voters. As a matter of fact no one desires a change, this committee being the most successful and harmonious in years, for which reason the Post would like to see it removed.

C. Y. M. N. U.

This year's convention of the Catholic Young Men's National Union will be held at the Capital of the nation on Monday and Tuesday, October 23 and 24, opening, as usual, with solemn high mass on Monday morning. The Carroll Institute has been chosen as the convention headquarters. Addresses will be delivered by distinguished gentlemen of national prominence and known ability among the hierarchy, clergy and laity, in public and private life. In the Western and Southern States it is hoped that at this convention action will be taken that will bring the National Union and the Young Men's Institute into one organization. This would give to the Catholic young men of the country an organization on the line of the Young Men's Christian Association, which discriminates against Catholics.

WINCHESTER.

Mrs. Ellen Glancy, wife of Luke Glancy, died Friday morning at her home on Cook avenue, after a short illness of acute indigestion. She leaves a husband, one son, William, and four daughters, Misses Nancy Glancy, of Lexington; Misses Kate and Frances Glancy and Mrs. James Toohay, of this city. She was sixty-eight years of age and was a native of Roscommon county, Ireland. She came to America fifty years ago, and had resided in this county thirty-two years.—Winchester Democrat.

ST. MICHAEL'S.

Celebration of its Forty-Fifth Anniversary Coming.

On Sunday, the 24th inst., Rev. Maria O'Connor and his parishioners will celebrate the forty-fifth anniversary of St. Michael's church, Brook street, near Market, in an impressive and brilliant manner. Since taking charge of this church Father O'Connor has worked a wonderful transformation. The church and its surroundings have been beautified and the debt that confronted him has been greatly reduced.

The anniversary exercises will be opened Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with a solemn high mass, at which time there will be preached an appropriate sermon by an eloquent, impassioned father. Preceding the mass there will be procession of the children and sodalities to the church, who will sing the inspiring hymn of St. Michael. In the evening there will be solemn vespers and benediction, when a number of visiting priests will occupy seats in the sanctuary. The music at all the services will be of the highest order, rendered by an augmented choir.

Monday morning there will be a requiem mass for the deceased members of the congregation. Father O'Connor and the people of the parish extend a cordial invitation to all Catholics and former members to take part in the anniversary celebration.

NIGHT CLASS.

Trinity Council Arranging For Educational Features.

A large number of members were present when the meeting of Trinity Council, Y. M. I., was called to order last Monday night. A. Velth and V. Rapp were placed on the sick list, having received injuries during the past week. A Grants was reported well, and Frank Nieder and Fred. Brown are still on the sick list, although both are doing nicely. Trinity Council will open its fall series of dances on September 28, by which time the work of replanning and repolishing the floor will be completed. Arrangements are also well under way for euchre and lotto on the afternoon and night of October 5. Ed. C. Kelly, Chairman of the Educational Committee, reported that arrangements have been practically made for having a night class in book-keeping for the members, and requested that all who are interested in this matter be present at the club room Friday night. It is the intention of the council to add additional classes later. The members also voted to enter a bowling team in one of the city leagues.

HENNESSY-DRISCOLL.

Miss Margaret A. Hennessy and Jerome J. Driscoll will be united in marriage at St. John's church on Tuesday morning, October 3, with a nuptial mass and Rev. Father Schumann performing the ceremony. The bride is the charming daughter of Mrs. Winifred Hennessy, of 1019 East Breckinridge street, and has always been a universal favorite in Catholic society. Her amiable disposition attracts to her many friends and admirers. Mr. Driscoll is a graduate of St. Xavier's College and now holds a responsible position with the Henderson railway. He is also prominently identified with St. John's parish and Trinity Council, Y. M. I. After the ceremony the happy young couple will take an extended Eastern tour, including a visit to New York, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia, and on their return will go to house-keeping.

RECENT DEATHS.

The funeral of Joseph F. Ashabraner, who died Monday, took place Wednesday morning from St. Louis Bertrand's church. He was twenty-one years of age and the oldest son of George and Mary Ashabraner, 624 Park avenue. The deceased was popular among his friends, who tendered heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved parents and relatives.

Michael Emmet Clark, aged seventy years and one of Louisville's most widely known citizens, died last Sunday afternoon at his home, 121 East Jacob street. For many years he was a prominent figure in the steamboat business on the Western and Southern rivers, and was respected for his integrity and kindness to his fellow-men. The funeral took place Tuesday morning from St. Mary Magdalen's church. Rev. Father Gausepohl officiating at the mass of requiem and preaching a feeling sermon on life and death.

Michael J. Tierney, well known and popular in railroad circles and residing at 1211 West Broadway, was called to his eternal reward Sunday afternoon, after a long illness borne with Christian fortitude. Mr. Tierney moved to this city from Bowling Green, some years ago. He was a practical Catholic and a devoted member of the church. He was fully prepared for the final summons. The funeral took place from the Cathedral on Wednesday morning, a large concourse of friends accompanying the remains to their last resting place.

BLESSED

Bishop O'Donoghue Officiated At St. Augustine's Church Sunday.

Beautiful Edifice Erected for the Colored Catholics of Louisville.

A Monument to the Zeal and Energy of the Rev. Father Felten.

ELOQUENT SERMONS PREACHED

Last Sunday was a great day for the Catholics of Louisville, and notably so for the Catholic colored people of this city, as it marked the dedication and blessing of the Church of St. Augustine at Thirteenth and Broadway, just erected under the direction of the zealous and energetic pastor, Rev. Francis Felten, to whom it will long stand as a monument. St. Augustine's is perhaps the handsomest church for colored people in the United States, and its beauty and perfection throughout was a surprise to all who attended the ceremonies.

With solemn ceremonies Right Rev. Denis O'Donoghue, attended by Fathers John O'Connor and Charles Raffo, as deacons of honor, dedicated and blessed the new church, which was thronged to the doors, many being unable to gain admission. Following the dedicatory ceremonies there was a solemn high mass, celebrated by Rev. Francis Felten, with Fathers Bachman and Jerome as deacon and subdeacon. Rev. Father Assent officiating as master of ceremonies. After the gospel Bishop O'Donoghue preached an able but feeling sermon, which had a marked effect upon his hearers. The Bishop dwelt upon the church and what it stands for, and in closing expressed his interest in St. Augustine's congregation and its welfare. The music of the mass was well rendered and compared favorably with that of many of the larger churches.

In the evening there was solemn vespers and benediction of the most blessed sacrament, and despite the rain the church was again taxed to its utmost capacity. There were myriads of electric lights and the illumination exceeded all expectations. Bishop O'Donoghue honored the occasion with his presence, attended by Fathers Melody and O'Connor. The clergy proceeded from the parochial residence and entered the church through the main aisle, all being seated within the sanctuary. Rev. George Schumann, of St. John's, was the celebrant of the vespers, assisted by Rev. Thomas White and Rev. George Weiss as deacon and subdeacon. Father Felten acting as master of ceremonies. Preceding the benediction the Rev. Charles P. Raffo delivered the sermon, in which he forcefully and eloquently dwelt upon the Catholic church and its mission. The Catholic church, he said, recognized no distinction in the administration of the sacraments, which were alike for rich and poor and all nationalities the world over. Here the sin laden soul will receive relief and grace, and here only can they partake of the blessed body and blood of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. At this altar they were to hear the word of God, not the individual opinion of the priest, but the teaching of God, unchanged from the time of the Apostles to this day. The Catholic church and its bishops and priests were preaching the mission and doctrine given by Christ himself. Always saying what was said by Christ and his apostles. Father Raffo pointed out that the priest re-tasted the same words for all in baptism, that there was but the one form of marriage, and that in receiving holy communion all knelt side by side, no distinction being made between prince and pauper.

After the benediction the Bishop and priests returned to the new parochial residence, where they were entertained by Father Felten in a most hospitable manner. The parochial school has been opened for the colored children, and from present indications the attendance will be larger than ever before.

CARDINAL MORAN'S SUCCESSOR.

The Most Rev. Dr. Kelly, Coadjutor Archbishop of Sydney, who succeeds Cardinal Moran, was born in Waterford City, Ireland, in 1850. He spent his boyhood in New Ross, was educated in St. Peter College, Wexford, and completed his theological course at the Irish College in Rome. In 1872 he was ordained by the Most Rev. Dr. Furlong in Enniscorthy Cathedral. Shortly afterward he joined the House of Missions at Enniscorthy, a member of which he continued for nineteen years. In 1891 he was appointed Rector of the Irish College in Rome, a position which he filled for ten years. In August, 1910, he was consecrated Bishop and appointed Coadjutor to his Eminence, Cardinal Moran, with the right of succession.

PROTECTS MARRIAGE.

In order to put a stop to a sacrilegious abuse of the great sacrament of matrimony by those who dare to stand before a civil judge to be legally married only, thereby depriving their church, their Archbishop and their pastor, profaning a sacrament by making it a useless and scandalizing the whole parish, the Most Rev. Archbishop Blenk, of New Orleans, has decreed that all those guilty of such a sacrilege shall do public penance in the kneeling at the altar rail, while the pastor reads out their expressions of sorrow and regret for the scandal and had example they have given. This regulation has been promulgated to protect the sanctity and dignity of the marriage ceremony.

DUBLIN.

What An American Saw During Horse Show Week.

At night during Horse Show week the streets of Dublin were full of prosperous looking men and finely dressed women; the jockeys, who are apparently lineal descendants of Ali Baba and his forty associates, with jaunty cars full of visitors from all parts of the world, were as happy as clams at high tide, and the whir of the engine of the private automobile—there are no taxicabs here—was heard everywhere.

At Phoenix Park on the opening day of the races there was also a great display of dress and a notable turn out of leaders of Anglo-Irish society, and everybody seemed to be having a glorious time. It was there that I met Richard Croker, the old-time Tammany leader, who is really in love with horse racing in Ireland. As I looked over the thousands of happy spectators—they were all laughing, losers as well as winners—I could not help contrasting this animated, joyous scene with the closed gates and the empty lawns at Saratoga, Belmont Park and Sheepshead Bay, where hundreds of thousands of Americans were wont to go for a day's outing and the rare, thrilling enjoyment of watching the sport of kings.

Mr. Croker, who is now in his seventieth year, looked stronger and less careworn than when, as the leader of Tammany Hall, he made and unmade judges and legislators. His eye was bright, his step was firm and his smile was genial. "Yes, I love Ireland," he said, "and its people. Look at them and tell me how you can help loving them? But I am an American and always will remain one."

LEAVES FOR SCHOOL.

Tuesday afternoon Misses Helen and Mary Malone, Frances and Catherine Tucker and Katie May Hines left for New York, where they will attend the convent and school conducted by the French Sisters.

Mackin Council Celebrates Its Eighteenth Anniversary Fittingly.

Made Splendid Showing at the Special Church Services Sunday.

Spectacle That Brought Joy and Gladness to Hearts of Many.

HAPPY THROG AT RECEPTION

Mackin Council, Y. M. I., now one of the most widely known Catholic young men's societies in the country, celebrated its eighteenth anniversary this week in a manner that brought joy and gladness to the hearts of the parents, brothers and sisters, wives and sweethearts and friends of its members. With the rising of the sun Sunday morning members of Mackin Council from all sections of the city wended their way to St. Anthony's church, where the hundreds assembled and in all piety and humility received their Eucharistic Lord, thus giving a practical exemplification of the first part of their motto, "Pro Deo." Rev. Father Seraphin was the celebrant of the high mass, at which the choir rendered a splendid musical programme. The big edifice was thronged and was ablaze with myriads of electric lights. Upon all sides were heard words of commendation for the splendid body of young men who are doing their utmost for God and country.

In the afternoon was another spectacle that thrilled the hearts of the crowds who witnessed it. Shortly before 3 o'clock the entire membership and visitors from other councils gathered at the club house, forming a procession headed by President Samuel Robertson and marching to St. Cecilia's church, where there was solemn vespers and benediction, all kneeling in adoration of their God.

Following the vespers services the march was resumed to the club house, the Stars and Stripes and Mackin's handsome banner flying at the head of the column, and here for two hours a most enjoyable reunion took place, the big hall being crowded to the doors.

President Robertson occupied the chair and extended the members and visitors a hearty welcome to Mackin's club house and the celebration of the eighteenth anniversary. It was, he said, a day of rejoicing for Mackin Council and the Kentucky jurisdiction. After congratulating the members on their loyalty he expressed thanks for the noble response made in the morning and afternoon. In a short review of the history of Mackin Council President Robertson pointed to the magnificent and elegantly equipped club house, entirely paid for, as evidence that they were trying to perform their duty as best they knew how. His remarks were well received and the mention of the name of each former President was warmly applauded. During its eighteen years Mackin Council has had fourteen Presidents, all but two of whom were present, and were called upon for a few remarks. Those responding were James T. Shelley, the first President; Vincent B. Smith, George Lausz, Dan Cuniff, William Kerberg, Frank Murphy, Charles Ralby, Councilmen Ben Sand, Attorney Robert T. Burke, Louis Kieffer, John Kenney and Hon. Samuel J. Robertson, who held office in the past. All had words of praise for the work already done, but they made appeals for a larger membership, as Mackin was now ready to receive 1,000 more members. All speakers had something nice to say of Chairman George Lausz and the committee that arranged the celebration. David O'Connell, of Trinity Council, was also called upon and responded with a short but ringing address, after which all were invited to partake of refreshments and cigars, of which there was an abundance.

The celebration came to a close Monday night with the reception and dance for members and their lady friends. The building was tastefully decorated and the brilliant assembly brought to a happy close the most creditable and general celebration in the history of Mackin Council.

FAHEY AGAIN NAMED.

His former services having proven most satisfactory, James Fahey was unanimously re-elected for the second term Secretary of the Jefferson County Election Commission. The commission met in the Sheriff's office for the election, when only the one name was presented. Sheriff Emier, Fred Forcht and Judge Homer Batson comprise the commission. Secretary Fahey's friends and the public commend the action of the Election Commission.

TRANSFERRED TO BARDSTOWN. Rev. Brother Adelbert, who last year was professor of classics at St. Xavier's College, has been transferred to St. Joseph's College at Bardonia. Brother Adelbert is a convert from the Episcopal church, and a nephew of the late John Hay, who served this country as Secretary of State.
